'Replica' gun creates scare at elementary school

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A "replica" gun in the hands of a visitor to Southport Elementary School's campus at about 3 p.m. on Friday created a scare and resulted in the arrest of a 21-year old West Sacramento man.

A police report said that Daniel Scott Rumsey was walking near the Linden Road campus on his way to do some target shooting on Port of Sacramento property when he "brandished" the weapon – a pellet gun – on the campus. He also discharged it in front of a school parent, although the gun apparently wasn't loaded.

Police initially received varying reports, including one report of "shots fired" at the school. This drew a large police response to the elementary school campus.

When confronted, Rumsey surrendered the pellet gun to the school principal, said Lieutenant David Farmer of the West Sacramento Police Department. "There were no threats made and when he was confronted, he gave them the pistol." Rumsey remained on scene to be arrested.

Court nullifies West Sac anti-gang injunction

No immediate word on whether West Sac & Yolo County will try again

An "anti-gang" injunction that imposed a curfew and other restrictions on people accused of being members of the Broderick Boys gang in West Sacramento has been ruled invalid by the 3rd District Court of Appeals, in a decision released Monday.

The court acknowledged that the city suffers from crime problems due to gang activity, but faulted the Yolo County District Attorney for failing to try hard enough to serve the members of the gang with the order. Law enforcement officials only served one gang member – Billy Wolfington – of "unknown rank," said the court decision released this week. Former District Attorney David Henderson and current D.A. Jeff Reisig (formerly an assistant D.A.) alleged there were about 350 members of the largely Hispanic and Caucasian gang.

But they passed up chances to properly serve notice of the injunction to more of these gang members, said the opinion, and failed to try to give them a chance to legally object.

The injunction creates a "safety zone" in West Sacramento consisting of most of the land north of the freeway and east of Harbor Boulevard. "Validated" gang members can be arrested for violating a 10 p.m. curfew, and are prohibited with associating with each other (with certain exceptions such as work or church) within that area.

The decision said that defendants of the injunction, served on Wolfington in early 2005, did not have the right to "heroic" efforts to be individually contacted with notice of the injunction. But "means employed must be such as one desirous of actually informing the absentee might reasonably adopt to accomplish it," said the ruling.

The D.A. skipped chances to serve gang members contacted for other reasons with the proposed injunction, passed up an opportunity to publish the proposal in local papers, and otherwise failed to give legal notice to the targets of the anti-gang injunction, said the ruling.

The injunction was a co-project of the D.A.'s office and West Sacramento police and public officials, who maintain it has been successful in reducing crime.

A phone call to West Sacramento Mayor Christopher Cabaldon was not immediately successful, and it was unclear whether the city and D.A.'s office would pursue another anti-gang injunction.

Oscar Villegas, the city's vice mayor, told the News-Ledger he didn't yet have a response to the legal decision.

The American Civil Liberties Union had argued in court that the injunction was obtained with insufficient notice to the alleged gang members.

Teen center gets $5,000

The West Sacramento home furnishings store made the Merkley Avenue teen center the beneficiary of a fundraiser, making good on a pledge to donate one percent of a day's revenues up to a maximum of $5,000. The store also gave the teen center a $500 furniture gift card.

"By watching the display furniture sales area, we made that that gift go a long way," said Dove. "Our youth really connect with the cool styles."

Making way for progress

A former freeway overpass came down on Wednesday, making way for what will be a major facelift for part of West Sacramento near the Tower Bridge.

Workers tore down the overpass along former State Route 275 -- the Tower Bridge approach -- at Riske Lane. That area near Raley Field will soon sport a new look.

Instead of being bisected by a freeway, the area will feature pedestrian-friendly city blocks with signalized intersections, new landscape and sidewalks. It is part of a plan to redevelop the waterfront area as an urban "downtown."

Traffic lanes on the Tower Bridge gateway have been reopened since the demolition, with one lane each direction and a 25 m.p.h. construction zone. Work will continue through the summer.

Two minors arrested in assault on Amtrak train crew

Engineer, conductor assaulted on tracks

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Amtrak police, with assistance from West Sacramento officers, are investigating the serious beating of a train engineer and another Amtrak employee on railroad tracks near 6th Street and Sacramento Avenue on April 16. Two juveniles face charges.

The incident allegedly involved young members of the local Broderick Boys gang, and occurred shortly after 10 p.m. – when an injunction-imposed curfew for gang members was supposed to be in effect.

"This was the second-to-the-last Capital Corridor training coming through that night to Sacramento," said Vernea Graham, a spokesperson for Amtrak police. "The train crew got a report from dispatch that there were trespassers on the tracks, therefore they were to go through at reduced speed. The train sounded the horn, but the people didn't move. The conductor was the first off the train, thinking he could 'shoo' the people off the tracks. A scuffle ensued. The engineer was pulled from the train. The engineer was injured. The conductor got back on the train. By this time, local police and the ambulance were arriving. A student engineer then took the train to the station."

Graham said that there were about five to seven suspects involved, and most fled "to the bushes."

According to West Sacramento police reports, a Sacramento police helicopter spotted three suspects still on the scene, and a male and female minor were detained. The male had a broken nose. According to West Sacramento police, the engineer was hit with a rock thrown through an open window.

The engineer was hospitalized, but is released and recovering, said Graham. The train's conductor suffered only minor injuries.

Yolo County District Attorney Jeff Reisig announced two days later that a male juvenile faced 14 felony charges in connection with the event – including attempted murder, assault with a deadly weapon, train robbery and criminal street gang activity. The 17-year old would be charged as an adult, said Reisig.

Graham said a second minor was arrested on Friday in conjunction with the attack. She added that this is the first time in her seven years with Amtrak that she is aware of this kind of attack upon a train crew.

No injuries, one arrest in California Street shooting

A West Sacramento man is in jail after allegedly trying to shoot someone in a dispute on California Street early Sunday morning.

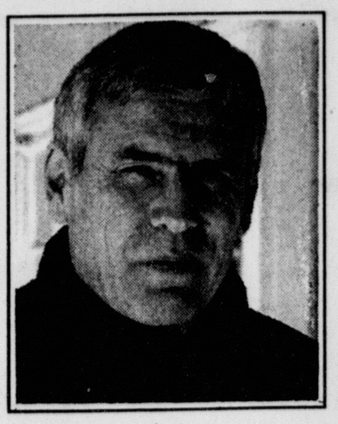
Paul Bertagna of California Street threatened to shoot the male victim, then retrieved a small caliber gun and fired three or four times, missing the victim, said reports from the West Sacramento Police Department.

Police responded, learning he was still inside the residence where the shooting occurred. They set up a perimeter around the home, and a police officer and dog found Bertagna hiding in the backyard.

A second "K9" team found a small caliber handgun in the backyard.

The incident took place Sunday morning at about 2 a.m. in the north area of the city.

There's always a price for an act of stupidity



By Daryl Fisher

I was watching the News-Hour with Jim Lehrer on PBS awhile back and Peter Galbraith, a former State Department official, made the following points about the seemingly endless war in Iraq:

"Iraq has already broken up and I'm opposed to using U.S. resources to try to put it back together again. Kurdistan in the north is already a de facto independent state. It has its own elected government. It has its own army. It flies its own flag. The Iraqi army is not allowed to go to Kurdistan. The Iraqi flag is banned there.

"The Shiite south is governed by the Shiite religious parties who enforce an Iranian-style Islamic law with militias. It's also not governed from Baghdad. Baghdad itself is the front line of a civil war divided between a Shiite east and a Sunni west, and the Sunni Center is a battleground between the coalition and Sunni insurgents. So the country has already broken up, and the result is actually incorporated into the Iraqi constitution. The constitution creates a virtually powerless center. So if that's the result that has been endorsed by the Iraqi people, I don't see why the United States should try to put the country back together."

When asked by Lehrer if it was then his position that the United States and its coalition allies have been trying to impose a unified Iraq on a group of people who do not want to be unified, Galbraith replied: "That's certainly true of the Kurds, who not only don't want to be a part of Iraq, but actually they hate Iraq. They see it as the country that committed genocide against them. The Shiites have also chosen a very decentralized form of state, and so there's really no reason to bring them back under the fold of a central government, either.

"President Bush says our goal in Iraq is a unified and democratic Iraq. But it's not realistic to think that Iraqi security forces can end sectarian fighting, because it's a civil war and the Iraqi security forces are themselves partisans in the civil war. They're either Shiite or Sunni."

"So," asked Lehrer, "does the U.S. have a role to play in dividing Iraq or should we just leave?"

"Our ability to influence events in Iraq is now extremely limited," explained Galbraith. "I see no purpose for a continued U.S. presence in the Shiite southern half of Iraq. It is true that, if we withdraw, it will be theocratic. It will not apply the human rights provisions in the Iraqi constitution, and it will be dominated by Iran. But that's the case now, and we aren't going to do anything to change it. And if we're not going to end the civil war in Baghdad, which would require us to endlessly police that city with large numbers of American troops, I see no point in us remaining."

"And the central government that now exists under the prime ministership of al-Maliki would just disappear?" asked Lehrer.

"One problem with many of the strategies being discussed is that they basically involve an ultimatum to the Iraqi government to get its act together or else we'll withdraw," explained Galbraith. "But the Iraqi government, even if it could get its act together, wouldn't matter, because it has no influence outside of the Green Zone."

"Finally," asked Lehrer, "using your plan as a guideline, do you see an ideal time line-type scenario that could actually resolve this thing peacefully over a period of time?"

"This thing is not going to be resolved peacefully," said Galbraith. "The civil war is likely to continue for a prolonged period of time, but I believe that the U.S. should extricate itself from parts of the country as quickly as possible because we're not doing any good."

When I mentioned all of the above to a longtime friend of mine who at first was very supportive of the Iraq war, we ended up having the following conversation:

"Well," said my friend, "at least that guy has a plan. All that ever comes out of Washington is more of the same."

"So, you don't think the surge is a new plan?" I asked.

"Of course not. We don't have enough troops to have a real surge. The truth is that we've never had enough troops in Iraq to do what our politicians wanted done. All we do is keep sending the same poor kids back there over and over again while the rest of us watch the carnage on our television sets in our comfortable living rooms."

Since my friend and I are both Vietnam veterans, I asked him if the Iraq war was starting to remind him of our war as much as it does me.

"Well," he said, "one thing is definitely the same -- the American people figured out it was time to get the hell out of Dodge long before the politicians ever did."

Later that evening, after the 6 o'clock news had added up the latest total of American soldiers killed in Iraq, and covered in grizzly detail a series of suicide bombings which had taken another couple of hundred Iraqi civilian lives in Baghdad, I recalled something my Granny had once told me when I was young, that when you do something stupid in this life, there is always a price to pay. And I guess when you do something monumentally stupid, like go to war just for the hell of it, the price you end up paying is almost incomprehensible.

'Lizzie' comes back home -- from a prison

A vintage firetruck nicknamed 'Lizzie' came home April 12 from a stay at the California State Prison, Solano. Prisoners there helped rehabilitate the vehicle, dismantling and restoring it as part of a vocational training program.

West Sacramento's Sierra Hart Towing took care of transporting the truck to the prison in 2003 and back again.

More work is needed, said the West Sacramento Historical Society.

"Lizzie symbolizes the early community of Bryte. After her retirement from fire suppression the community could have sold her for scrap, but instead kept her for future generations," said society president Thom Lewis.

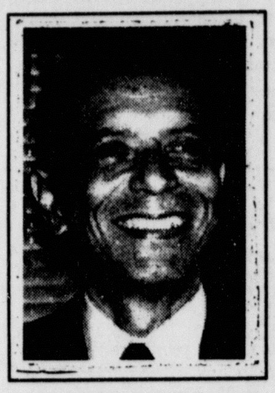
SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa



By Richard Novoa

The NBA playoffs tipped off last weekend with some bad match ups but they also provided us with a couple of first game surprises especially with the Golden State Warriors stealing game one in Dallas. The Mavericks, who were shocked by their former coach Don Nelson and his Warriors, seem to be a bad match up with Golden State. The Warriors, who have not lost to the Mavs this year, are on a quiet mission to upset Mark Cuban and his top seeded Mavs.

In the Western Conference Dallas should still take care of the newly rejuvenated Warriors, who seem to own Mark Cuban's Mavericks but I like Dallas to win the series in 7 games!

The Suns will probably sweep the Lakers and Houston will take care of Utah in five games but the San Antonio Spurs will have their hands full with Allen Iverson, Carmelo Anthony and the rest of the Nuggets. This could be the first big upset – I like the Nuggets in seven games!

In the East, the Detroit Pistons will take care of Orlando with easy while King James leads Cleveland to a sweep over Washington. The New Jersey Nets will out last the young Toronto Raptors while the Bulls put the Heat on Miami in a seven game series that the Bulls win!

Kings Korner

Last week the Kings lost their head coach and their important coin toss with the Knicks and Bobcat for a better position in the draft lottery. The Kings, who finished tied with Charlotte and New York for the eighth-worst record in the NBA, lost the tiebreakers and are listed 10th among the 14 picks and have 18 chances out of 1,000 to win the No. 1 pick in the May 22nd lottery.

The Kings, who posted a 20-21 record at the Arco Arena, will have their first draft lottery pick in nine years and have no second round selection the this years draft.

Also, the Kings fired Eric Musselman after posting a 33 wins and 49 losses in his first season with Sacramento. Musselman will walk away with a check for about $5 million for his troubles and payment for the final two years of his contract. Poor Guy!

Diamond Notes

Last week was Barry-Barry good for the G-Men. The Giants are starting to snap out of their spring training slump with a 5 game winning streak to climb out of the division cellar.

The two Barry's lead the Giants out of their doldrums with Zito pitching like the Million Dollar man he is suppose to be, extending his shutout string to 13 ⅓ innings and squaring his record at 2-2. While the other Barry yanked his 740th home run moving 15 home runs closer to Hammering Hank Aaron's career mark.

The G-Men will be in Los Angeles for a three series against the Dodgers followed by a weekend trip to Arizona while the A's entertain Seattle and Tampa Bay this week at McAfee Stadium in Oakland.

The odds on baseball races were posted in Las Vegas making the A's 20-1 to win the World Series, 12-1 to win the pennant, 22-10 to take the division title while the Giants are 30-1 for the World Series, 12-1 for the pennant, 7-2 for the division.

River Cats

The River Cats (12-6), who are leading the Division, got a surprise visit from A's first baseman Dan Johnson, who started his rehab assignment with the Gatos on Monday night. The A's placed Johnson on the 15-day DL at the end of spring training with a torn labrum in his hip.

Former American River College pitcher, Dallas Braden was called up to the A's and will make his Major League debut on Tuesday for A's in Baltimore. Braden, 23, started the season in Double A and made his only Triple-A appearance last Thursday for the Cats allowing 3 hits and no runs in six innings.

The River Cats will hit the road on Thursday for a four game series in Utah followed by another four game set in Las Vegas with the 51's. The Cats will return to West Sacramento to tangle with the Tucson Sidewinders in a four game series starting on May 4th.

NFL Draft

The Oakland Raiders are on the clock with the first pick in Saturday's (8 a.m.- ESPN) college draft. The Raiders owner, Al Davis, is famous for big first round surprises so don't be shocked if he decides to trade down or pick somebody other than LSU quarterback, JaMarcus Russell. The Raider's new head coach 31year-old coach, Lane Kiffin, will be Al's puppet and remember whatever Davis wants Davis gets.

The Niners on the other hand will select 11th in the draft but with their 10 picks in the first four rounds don't be surprised to see the 49ers try and trade up to snag wide receiver, Calvin Johnson. The Niners will be looking for defensive help but they need a big time receiver to compliment the running of Frank Gore and connect with a big time receiver to the arm of Alex Smith.

Enjoy your day – see ya next week!

RC tennis chases league title

From River City High School

With three more wins in the past ten days, the River City High School tennis team has moved to within one victory of clinching first place in the Capital Valley Conference. RC is now 9-0 in the C.V.C. with three matches remaining, and 17-1 overall.

Top boys singles player Chris Salazar didn't even drop a single game in any of the three contests to lopsided wins against Sacramento Country Day (9-0), Rio Linda (9-0), and Dixon (8-1). In addition to Salazar's remarkable streak of 6-0,6-0 victories, River City received three wins in girls singles from Yelena Ionova at the #1 position and three from Cindy Yang at the #2 spot. Doug Tipton won two of his three matches at #2 boys singles.

In boys doubles, the #1 duo of Kehoua Saechao and Adrian Araza posted three victories and Gary Yang won twice with Brandon Yip and once with Dipak Patel at #2. Anna Bouttavong had an amazing run as well, winning 10-0 and 10-1 in mixed doubles with Josel Tanjutco, and 10-1 in #1 girls doubles against Dixon paired with Yian Saetern. Tamara Lopatin and Sandy Phousanglasy took care of Sacramento Country Day's top girls team 10-2, and Lopatin and Julie Saeteurn pounded Rio Linda's best pair 10-3. Other doubles results included Tanjutco and Phousanglasy winning 10-4 in mixed against Dixon, and Yian Saetern and Svetlana Istomin cruising 10-2 in #2 girls doubles at Rio Linda.

Up next for River City is the last home match of the regular season, tomorrow at 4 p.m. against Center, defending the annual Quincy Invitational Tournament title this weekend, and traveling to the Natomas Racquet Club to face Foothill next Tuesday.

Calculate your share of proposed new flood taxes

Property homeowners can now find out what they will pay if a new flood control bond measure passes in West Sacramento.

To find out what the annual fee will be for your house, visit the website www.westsacflood-protection.com, and look for the link near the bottom of the page to "preliminary assessment calculator."

You can click on that link, enter your assessor's parcel number, and find out what your share of the annual flood assessment will be. Your assessor's parcel number is available from your property tax bill, or by using a link at the "calculator" website.

The News-Ledger did a very quick and unscientific survey of what the annual fee will be for several homes in the north, south and center of West Sacramento. Projected annual costs for these homes ranged from about $62 to about $122 per year – although some homeowners will pay more and some less than this range.

Officials from the City of West Sacramento and other local flood protection agencies hope voters will approve a $42 million bond in June, financing part of a "local share" of the costs of improvements to the levee system. They expect to levy new impact fees on new development and major remodeling to raise another $42 million. New studies have shown that the levees are not as dependable as previously thought – and the city hopes to use $400 million in new levee work to bring West Sacramento to a "200 year" level of flood protection.

WUSD considers pay raise, consultant on bond issue

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Board meets tomorrow evening at 7 p.m. in public session, city hall

West Sacramento's school board tomorrow will consider budgeting $28,500 for a consultant company to do communications work ahead of a planned local vote on a proposed $65 million school bond. The district expects to schedule the bond vote for November.

By law, public agencies can't use public money for campaign purposes, but they can use it to pass out information.

A report to the trustee's of Washington Unified School District said that the chosen consulting firm, Capitol Campaigns, "is being recommended because they have successfully helped several other school districts (i.e., Buckeye, Folsom Cordova, Natomas) recently pass challenging General Obligation bonds."

The firm will be asked to conduct 14-minute surveys of 400 "likely" voters, using the results to make recommendations to the school district. The company will also use the results to "inform residents about their school's facilities needs."

"Creating the 'need' in voters' minds and showing how every neighborhood would benefit from the G.O. bond is typically the most important communication a district can provide," said the staff report for tomorrow's meeting. "The broad base of support generated by communications of this kind has proven to be effective in creating the environment necessary for voter approval. All communications, such as district newsletters, will be designed and implemented with the intent of creating awareness of the students' needs."

The planned school bond is intended to help finish paying for a new high school campus and to pay for conversion of local "kindergarten through sixth" grade classes to "kindergarten through eighth" grade campuses, among other things.

In other scheduled business, the board will vote on a package that will give an increase in salary and benefits to some management personnel.

Top administrators such as the superintendent and three assistants will see only a small increase in their benefits package, to match the teachers' package.

Principals, vice principals, and department directors are among those who will see both a small increase in the number of required workdays and a raise of 4.5 percent retroactive to January. The net result will be a 1.9 percent increase in the "effective daily rate" paid to these employees.

The board will meet in public at 7 p.m. tomorrow at the civic center, 1110 West Capitol Avenue.

Fire station open house —

From Art Schroeder
City of West Sacramento

One of West Sacramento's original fire stations, Station 41 on 15th Street, is "ready for duty" following major remodeling. The public is invited to attend a "welcome back, 41" open house, Tuesday, May 1, 5 p.m.-7 p.m.

The 4,000 square foot Station 41 has new living quarters, a community room, an exercise room—and the first fire pole in the history of the West Sacramento Fire Department (WSFD). The remodeling is part of a series of facilities improvements by the WSFD, which includes construction of Fire Station 45, the first new firehouse built in West Sacramento since 1970. Station 45, off Lake Washington Boulevard near Jefferson, will open this summer.

During the remodeling, Station 41 continued to providing service to the community. The apparatus room, which contains engine 41, did not require remodeling. Firefighters were temporarily housed in an adjacent mobile facility.

During the May 1 open house, a special ceremony is scheduled for 6 p.m. Mayor Christopher Cabaldon will welcome West Sacramento Historical Society (WSHS) member Jeri Wingfield, whose grandfather, Eric Hughes, served as chair of the local fire commission when Station 41 was originally built in 1939. In honor of the occasion, "Old Mary," one of West Sacramento's first fire trucks will be on display, courtesy of the WSHS.

The open house event will include tours, car seat information and blood pressure checks. Refreshments will also be available.

Fire Station 45 is located at 132 15th St., off Jefferson Boulevard. For more information, contact the WSFD, (916) 617-4600.

Elkhorn Park offers residents a riverfont escape

By Beth Gabor
Yolo County Public Information Officer

With EarthDay just behind us on April 21, residents of Yolo county have a fantastic opportunity to enjoy the rich, natural resources of the county by participating in a fun-filled event at Elkhorn Regional Park – a 50 acre county park and river access facility located on the Sacramento River, just eight miles north of West Sacramento, and two miles south of I-5 on River Road (CR 22).

Elkhorn Regional Park, deeded to the county by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in 1978, is a fabulous county park along the Sacramento River with rich native habitats and recreational opportunities. This park offers the public a rare opportunity to walk amongst the sights and sounds of a riparian gallery forest, one of the most special, yet threatened wildlife habitats in California. Elkhorn is the only location in Yolo County that the public can readily view this unique wildlife habitat.

Upon entering the site, visitors are greeted by thick stands of large cottonwoods draped in a tapestry of wild grape vines. Resident and migratory birds such as great blue herons, egrets, black crowned night herons, and a variety of hawks regularly inhabit the site and a variety of anadromous fishes such as king salmon, striper, American shad, and sturgeon can be readily seen in the river from the site. Recreational opportunities available to the public at Elkhorn include, picnicking, bird watching, nature study, short hiking opportunities to view the natural habitat, a grassy play area and a boat launching facility complete with boarding floats, parking for boat trailers and fishing access from the river bank. Restrooms and potable water are available, and a park host resides on site to assist the public.

The Yolo County Parks & Open Space Master Plan, adopted by the Board of Supervisors in 2006, proposes a strengthening of existing uses, and a number of improvements to enhance the habitats and recreational opportunities on the site, including additional riparian restoration projects, pedestrian trails into the gallery forest with educational/interpretive programs, the development of a park docent program, upgraded boating facilities, and additional picnic areas.

On April 21, the California State Parks Foundation held one of their annual statewide Earth Day restoration and cleanup projects, sponsored by PG&E, at Elkhorn Regional Park. Volunteers of all ages helped with the planting of native California grasses and sedges, spreading of native grass straw mulch, installation of an irrigation system, removal of invasive, non-native plants, and installation of an educational/information kiosk. For more information about the county parks system contact Dimitrios Georges at (530) 666-8806. For information about the California State Parks Foundation Earth Day cleanup project see http://www.calparks.org/programs/earth-day.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS

The Sacramento River registered 3 feet 8 inches, United States gauge at the Southern Pacific bridge yesterday.

A new addition has been made to the equipment of the Leinberger slaughter house in the shape of a traffic truck which was purchased by the firm last week from George Barr of Sacramento. It would appear as if the Traffic Truck was becoming a favorite of this section of Yolo County, for lately three of them have been bought in this locality, one by Leinberger, one by Kline, and one by Joseph, the dairyman. Employes of the Leinberger slaughter house have been very busy during the holiday season, so much so that another man has been added to the force in the last week, with the likelihood that there will be still further increase before the Christmas holidays.

It may be foolish to draw attention to the deficiencies of these days as in comparison with those of a few years ago. Robbery and theft are of such common occurrence that even peace officers pay but little attention to them nowadays. As a matter of fact anything short of murder is of trivial consequence to the average citizen. Yesterday a petty larcenist stole from the back porch of the residence of a colored lady at 408 Second street a roasted turkey that had just been put out by her to cool off before dinner. And not only did he steal the roast turkey, but he took along the dutch oven. Discovering her loss the colored lady made complaint to Deputy Constable Ira Davis and Judge Barry and was willing to forfeit the turkey if only the miscreant would return the dutch oven. Unfortunately her "old man" was coming home in a short while with a sharpened appetite for that anticipated turkey and if it had not been found by the time of his return there was bound to be a rumpus in the household. The latest heard of the episode was the run that Constable Ira Davis was making along the levee to a boathouse in the vicinity of the M street bridge in pursuit of a young lady that wore flapper clothes and half socks.

Considerable renovation has been made to the town hall during the past few weeks by the fire trustees in an effort to strengthen the weak parts that needed attention. The northern end of the structure was renewed to such an extent that all the underpinning was made over in the amount of about $150. These funds were derived from rents taken in by the trustees and from dances held during the present winter in the town hall under the auspices of the volunteer firemen. The building is now in a very substantial condition, to remain so for several years to come.

The Washington Star Club had its regular meeting at the Westminster Presbyterian Church last Wednesday evening. Considerable rivalry has been cultivated in a race between the boys and girls of the Washington Community Church as to who will collect the most money for the benefit of the church before Christmas. At the meeting last Wednesday evening Donald Shaw was placed on trial before a jury on a charge of bribery that had taken place some time ago when another trial was before the court. Fleming Peek was Judge last Wednesday with Joe Ball defending, and A. J. DeRiso prosecuting, Bill Crowe and Francis Bennetts were witnesses against the accused, but nevertheless the jury exonerated him on the charge. The case was thrown out of court, to be brought up at a later trial.

The boys of the Washington Star Club will play at the Y. M. C. A. next Saturday evening a game of basketball wherein they are matched against the boys of the Calvary Baptist Church. A lively game is anticipated.

Albert Bonnetti has returned to school after a week's illness at his home.

In last week's Independent word was published that the home of A. Valine was raided and a quantity of wine taken by enforcement officers or deputy sheriffs. Mr. Valine declares no such raid occurred and no wine was taken from his premises, nor has he any wine in his farm or home.

Plans are progressing for the program which is being prepared by the children and teachers of the Washington school, to be presented on December 21st.

Mrs. A. A. Dassonville has returned from Oakland, where she spent a few days.

Clarence House and Douglas Frank, residents of the Fresno section, were recent visitors at the P. A. Hart home.

J. N. Peterson, who has been visitgin in Tucson, Arizona, returned to his home in Washington.

Mrs. J. McNevens, who has been confined to her home by illness, is rapidly recovering.

Mrs. William Hughes and daughter, who have been spending a few days in Berkeley, returned to their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Beuthel and Mrs. J. Allyn comprise a party of Fresno residents spending a few days in Washington as the guests at the respective homes of Mrs. Celia Hart and P. A. Hart and family.

W. Edenson who spent Thanksgiving Day and the week-end visiting with friends in this community, returned to his home in Oakland last Sunday.

Mrs. William Wilson is confined to one of the hospitals in San Francisco by serious illness.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of the Community Church of Washington met Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. L. E. Sorrell on Second street.

IMPROVEMENT CLUB OF DISTRICT 900 MEETING BROUGHT MUCH BENEFIT

On Friday evening, November 30th, the improvement club of West Sacramento, or District 900, convened at the headquarters of the West Sacramento Company to consider important matters concerning the district.

On the same evening a meeting of the board of trustees of the reclamation district was held in the same place, and after adjournment of both sessions a joint meeting of the trustees with the members of the improvement club was held.

Among the many questions taken up at the meeting of the club was that of roads, culverts, levees, ditches and crop rotation.

A great deal of enthusiasm prevailed at the meeting of the people concerning the completion of the road on Jefferson boulevard.

It was expected that on completion of both these stretches of road the supervisor would extend culverts leading to side roads for the farmers of the district and a committee was appointed to interview Supervisor Leinberger in order to accomplish this result.

O. E. Van Tassel reported that the levee road south of headquarters was now in fairly good condition, having been rocked by the farmers of the district after the necessary macadam had been procured by the supervisors.

On the question of crops it was noted that there was a large demand for lettuce grown in West Sacramento, as well as celery and tomatoes, owing mostly to the wonderful good flavor attaching to these crops.

It was reported that Sacramento wholesalers and retailers give preference to lettuce grown in this locality as against that grown in the southern part of the state and which at the present time seems to hold the market above all others.

The question of cleaning ditches, irrigation or reclamation, took up considerable time. It was reported that at this time a great deal of cleaning is necessary, for while some farmers suffer from an overplus of water others are suffering from lack of it.

To the poor condition of the canals this is to be blamed and a promise was made at the joint meeting by the trustees that as soon as possible the necessary steps will be taken to clean all canals and ditches.

The levee committee reported that the front levee along the river is now in first class shape, having been graded to proper elevation and wrapped with brush at the expense of the district.

Compaint was made that some stock owners of the district were permitting their cattle to run loose, particularly in the township of West Sacramento, to the detriment of sidewalks and homes in the township.

A communication was ordered sent to those guilty asking that remedial steps be taken at once.

Another committee was appointed to interview the headquarters of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company to ask for better service throughout the district.

PIONEER LADY OF WASHINGTON DEAD FOLLOWING PNEUMONIA

Report had it yesterday that Mrs. William Wilson died in San Francisco at the home of her son, Nelson, following a severe case of pneumonia.

This news was confirmed to the Independent last night, but details were missing, although it was positively asserted that the immediate cause of her death was pneumonia.

Report had it also that her son, Nelson Wilson, was seriously sick following a transfusion of blood from him in an effort to save the life of his mother. This was subsequently denied.

Mrs. Wilson's death took place in San Francisco, Thursday morning, December 6th.

She was a pioneer resident of Washington, experiencing all the troubles and vicissitudes of pioneer days, having been washed out in the flood of 1862 and having been threatened on many subsequent occasions with flood from the Sacramento River.

Mrs. Wilson was a native of Scotland. During forty-five years she had been a resident of Washington. She was an estimable housewife, a faithful companion to her late husband, William Wilson, and a mother in every sense of the word to her two children, Nelson Wilson of San Francisco and Mrs. Black, also of San Francisco.

Of late years her health had been failing and she devoted most of her time to the care of her children and grandchildren. Frequently she visited in Washington, where she still retained her property interests and where her best wishes remained, even though she was forced to live in another community.

Her funeral arrangements have not yet been completed, but from what has been learned the obsequies will be held from her late home at Fourth and Elizabeth streets, with burial likely at the side of her husband in the city cemetery in Sacramento.

Mrs. Wilson had always been active in promoting the best interests of the town of Washington. During several years she was an ardent supporter of the Washington Improvement Club. Anything that appeared to be for the best interests of the community she espoused with a will that did not lack enthusiasm. In every sense of the word she was a good citizen, a thorough housewife, a faithful wife and a loving mother.

Her demise will be regretted by a host of friends who knew her for her sincerity, her honesty of purpose and her unfailing fidelity to the community where she lived so long.

IMPROVED SERVICE FOR CLARKSBURG FERRY ASKED

Supervisor Leinberger has been in communication with the Board of Supervisors of Sacramento County, asking that improved service be furnished for the Hood ferry crossing the Sacramento River.

Residents of Hood complain that the Sacramento Supervisors only provide a day service, whereas those at Clarksburg are provided a day and night service by the supervisors of Yolo County.

The Sacramento board has granted the petition with the result that the service will go into effect very soon.

Work has started in preparation for the presenting of the Christmas program in the Washington school by the pupils. The children have been assigned their various parts in the program.

VOLUNTEER FIREMEN WOULD REGULATE TO HELP DEPARTMENT

To help along the volunteer fire department of Washington the fire trustees have drafted ordinances to help the department.

It is perfectly within the rights of the trustees to draft these regulations for the protection of the people, and although some people may be dubious about the legality of the ordinances, infractions thereof will mean punishment for the offenders. The ordinances as drafted are as follows:

WASHINGTON FIRE DISTRICT ORDINANCE NO. 1

An ordinance for the protection of fire hose from damage while in use upon the public thoroughfares within the limits of the Washington Fire District, in the County of Yolo, State of California.

The Board of Fire Commissioners of the Washington Fire District, in the County of Yolo, State of California, do ordain as follows:

Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to drive, operate or move, or cause to be driven, operated or moved, any motor vehicle or horse drawn vehicle in such a manner as to cause any of the wheels of said vehicle to pass over or upon any fire hose while said hose is lying in or upon any alley, street or highway in the Washington Fire District, in the County of Yolo, State of California.

Sec. 2. Any person or persons, violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined or imprisoned, as provided for in Sections 1426 to 1449, both inclusive, Title 9, Chapter 1, of the Penal Code, of the State of California.

Sec. 3. A copy of this ordinance shall be posted in three public places in the town of Washington, Yolo County, California, for the period of two weeks, at the end of which time it shall become a law in and for the above named Fire District.

The foregoing ordinance was passed and adopted by the Board of Fire Commissioners of the Washington Fire District, County of Yolo, State of California, at a session of said Board held on the 19th day of November, 1923.

D. E. BARRY,
Board of Fire Commissioners of the above named Fire District.

PETITION BEFORE SUPERVISORS TO CLOSE STREET

At the meeting of the Yolo County Board of Supervisors to be held in Woodland, December 18th, a petition to close some streets and alleys in Washington will be up for consideration.

The closing of these streets or alleys has been asked by Mrs. Isabelle G. Malone Parkinson and involves the streets in the block west of Sixth, between Elizabeth and Anne streets.

The Independent has been unable to secure from Supervisor Leinberger the exact data in relation to the request but in the next issue of the Independent details will be published.

In the meantime it is well for residents of Washington to make inquiries as to what streets and alleys are to be closed.

AUTOMOBILE TAKEN FROM STUDENT FOUND

Constable Buckingham has under his care at this writing the automobile of L. H. Crocker, which was taken from him on Friday night, November 30th. It was found by Contable Buckingham along the embankment of the Sacramento Northern Railway at an extension of Third street and had been left standing in that locality for several days.

When found by Constable Buckingham all that was missing was the battery. Otherwise the car was intact. Evidently the hold-up men had left it there after returning from the hold-up which they staged near Webster station on the young university student.

WASHINGTON FIRE DISTRICT ORDINANCE NO. 2

An ordinance prohibiting the obstructing of fire plugs or hydrants and the approaches or entrances to any Fire House or Fire Station within the limits of the Washington Fire District, in the County of Yolo, State of California.

The Board of Fire Commissioners of the Washington Fire District, in the County of Yolo, State of California, do ordain as follows:

Section 1. It shall be unlawful for any person or persons, firm or corporation to park or leave standing any motor vehicle or horse drawn vehicle, or to place or leave or cause to be placed or left any other obstruction of any kind upon any public walk, alley, street or highway closer than 20 feet to any fire plug or fire hydrant, or any approach or entrance to any Fire House or Fire Station in the Washington Fire District, in the County of Yolo, State of California.

Sec. 2. Any person or persons violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined or imprisoned, as provided for in Sections 1426 to 1449, both inclusive, Title 9, Chapter 1, of the Penal Code, of the State of California.

Sec. 3. A copy of this ordinance shall be posted in three public places in the town of Washington, Yolo County, California, for a period of two weeks, at the end of which time it shall become a law in and for the above named Fire District.

The foregoing ordinance was passed and adopted by the Board of Fire Commissioners of the Washington Fire District, County of Yolo, State of California, at a session of said Board held on the 19th day of November, 1923.

BANDITS HOLD UP UNIVERSITY STUDENT AND ROB HIM

Woodland, Dec. 4.—Securely tied to a post about 1 o'clock yesterday morning by two young bandits whom he had given a "lift" out of Sacramento towards Davis, H. L. Crocker, student at the Davis Farm, was robbed of his coin, approximately $13, and his Ford touring car, numbered 169,236. Crocker was forced to leave his automobile at the points of revolvers levelled at him by the two men whom he believed he had befriended.

Fred Snyder, brother of John Snyder, farmer northeast of Davis, assisted Young Crocker to Sacramento after he had broken from the ropes binding him to the fencepost, and put him in communication with Sheriff J. W. Monroe of this city and the Sacramento police department early yesterday morning. Fred Snyder returned to Davis yesterday morning, returning Crocker's overcoat, which had been thrown out of the stolen automobile to the Davis pool hall.

Crocker alleges that he was roughly handled by the two young men, whom he believed to be residents of Davis, if not students at the University Farm. He managed to break loose from his bonds within a short time after the departure of the robbers and then met Snyder, who put him in touch with the Woodland and Sacramento authorities.

Crocker says two men accosted him on the Southern Pacific bridge out of the capital and asked to be given a ride. He acceded.

When the automobile reached the vicinity of Webster Station, Crocker's two passengers suddenly produced revolvers and ordered him to drive his auto down a lonely side road, where he was tied to a fencepost by his captors.

After searching Crocker's pockets and taking the money and watch the two bandits appropriated the automobile and drove off in the direction of Sacramento.

Sheriff Monroe made as much of a search as possible but was unable to get any of the details of the affair, due to the absence of Crocker in Sacramento who was making an effort to get in touch with his car.

The highway robbery and theft of the automobile is the second within

Letters to the Editor

Two great teachers

The recent tragedy at Virginia Tech, National Teacher Appreciation Week, and a personal loss have prompted this letter.

There has been a lot of bad press toward River City High School over the last few years, most of which I viewed as unwarranted. Having been an educator at some five high schools, I can say unequivocally that there is no more caring place than River City High School. The 9/11 tragedy happened within a few weeks of my arrival at the school and the way our River City students handled this national tragedy was absolutely wonderful. This climate of kindness and compassion among our diverse student body amazed me on numerous occasions. And these students didn't just arrive on our campus this way. These teens have obviously benefited from great parenting, outstanding teachers and a caring community.

The number of adults who grew up in this community and now work at River City is also very impressive. And even more impressive is the quality and caring of the entire staff at RCHS. One truly outstanding teacher and role model who immediately comes to mind is Chris Baker. Chris doesn't just teach his classes, he inspires and motivates kids to be their best selves. Another outstanding RCHS teacher and coach, Dave Brooks, also grew up in West Sacramento. Dave teaches severely disabled students and coaches the championship tennis team. His ability to empower his students is truly remarkable. Every time I recall a RCHS graduation, I see one of our so-called "disabled" students marching proudly and unaided across the graduation stage and their teacher is standing far in the background. Likewise, his tennis team frequently fills up the top ten academic students of the graduating class. Dave recently experienced a personal tragedy with the loss of his sister, Amy. His love for his sister undoubtedly helped make him the outstanding teacher and coach that he is today.

Teachers like Chris Baker and Dave Brooks have made it their mission to find the star quality in every student and then cheer them on from the sidelines. How fortunate we are to have numerous teachers like these two wonderful educators in our community. So please take the time to thank a teacher or a member of the West Sacramento educational community today!

Hats off to Karl

As being labeled somewhat of a "frequent flyer" at the podium of school board meetings myself, I must fully agree with Mr. Machschefes (News-Ledger, April 18) and the others who can see right through this board/administration and the "restructuring" of the board agendas. If the board had it their way there would be no public comment on any items. They would have the entire meeting in close session and keep us as in the dark as possible.

Ever notice how first and second readings of important things like five new $75,000 to $95,000 positions are now "consent agenda" items? Ever take a look at the numbers for resolutions that should all be in sequence and passed in public session have very large gaps between them? They are not even illegally listed in close session. They just "HAPPEN". Notice how people just "appear" working in different locations without ever seeing it on an agenda? As was stated out loud by the board president at the last meeting, we can discuss anything, anytime and we will.

This week we will see the administrative/confidential raises and benefits changes that were pulled from the last agenda. Since you have already been participating in this illegal benefit plan since February why bring it to the public that you plan to continue to do so? Did you not get a copy of board policies, the Brown Act, Roberts Rules of Order, and the Educational Code when you joined the board? If not I can surely get you a copy but I can not force you to read it. That part is your job. I have given you a copy of the educational code as well as your own policy that states certificated administration, management and confidential employees shall have the same benefits as certificated bargaining unit employees and classified administration, management and confidential shall have the same as classified bargaining unit employees. There are no other options. So why are you doing it and why publicize it? You do not even publicize the things you should. Since I gave you a copy of this information at a previous board meeting you can not claim ignorance of the law. You also have a U.S. Attorney and a retired Police Chief on your board. They are held to an even higher standard of knowledge.

Let's step up to the plate instead of leading your administrators back to the pay raise trough. You just made your classified employees and teachers grovel on the sidewalk for raises and now you are back for seconds in less than two years? That now makes it 14.5% raises to these folks in less than two years and it is retroactive on top of it. What happened to the good old "we have NO MONEY"? Did we grow a money tree since you settled the bargaining unit contracts? If so, why are we having so many layoffs? How do you justify raises to people that just got 10% a year ago, giving only 6% to teachers after they had to beg on the streets, and not having enough money for our new high school? The Math Coordinator you pulled is the one you really need.

Or even better, you could slide a new position for a coordinator of violations of policies and laws under consent items. Then you could just put a new section on the agenda each week and title it "Corrections of Violations

Medical insurance for all

April 15-21 marked "Cover the Uninsured Week", a nationwide campaign to generate awareness about the need to insure all Americans, especially children. However, fixing the problems in our healthcare system will take more than just seven days. This is why Governor Schwarzenegger and others have declared 2007 the "Year of Healthcare Reform". During this year we invite you to join us in making healthcare reform and healthcare for all a priority. Our particular focus at the Yolo County Children's Alliance and First 5 Yolo will be on the children, because meaningful healthcare reform must include a plan to ensure our kids have access to preventative, urgent and acute medical care.

Act early to avoid threat of foreclosure

By Lori Heavin

The old saying "bad news travels fast" has never been more evident than when you look at the fate befalling a number of homeowners in West Sacramento and the nation. The dark cloud known as "foreclosure" is moving rapidly through our area. It should really be little surprise that for over a year, many economists familiar with the housing boom of recent years have preached the pitfalls of the creative loans that put many homeowners through the door – and soon after, up against a wall with nowhere to turn.

The latest report from The Center for Responsible Lending indicates an astounding 2.4 million holders of subprime mortgage loans made between 1998 and 2006 will lose their properties to foreclosure. The non-profit policy and advocacy organization for homeowners goes on to state that, even worse, this fallout will result in a net home ownership loss of one million households.

If you are reading this and wondering how it could happen to you or to a friend of yours, the time to act is now.

The longer a person who is facing tough financial times waits to get information about their situation, the narrower the options become. With the dip in real estate values over the last six months, avoiding foreclosure has become even more of a challenge for some. The downside becomes even more slippery when you consider how what happens now can handcuff you financially sometime down the road.

To look at the upside, helpful options are out there if the situation is right. If your problems are temporary – such as a job layoff – something as simple as adjusting your normal spending habits temporarily can make a difference. Dropping HBO for a few months or cutting back on the big night out for a short time will soon add up. It's not fun, but neither is foreclosure.

If you see your challenge as more long-term, bigger steps may be necessary. If you're holding a primary mortgage and a variable-rate home equity line of credit, you might look into one fixed-rate loan that combines the two.

While you certainly don't want to face foreclosure, your mortgage company isn't wild about the possibility, either. You can ask for a temporary reduced-payment schedule known as a "forbearance."

As another step, which for many would be the last option, is to sell. If you've owned your home for several years or more, there's a good chance you can walk away with a profit – and live to own again another day.

GO FIGURE! by Linda Thistle

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On May 5, 1914, Erwin "Cannonball" Baker begins a cross-continental motorcycle trip on his 1,000cc V-twin Stutz Indian motorcycle. Starting in California, Baker traveled 3,379 miles across the U.S. Due to the poor roads and primitive "cradle-spring" shock absorption of his bike, he rode most of the way standing up.

• On April 30, 1927, the Federal Industrial Institute for Women, the first women's federal prison, opens in Alderson, W.Va. The vast majority of the women were imprisoned for drug and alcohol charges imposed during the Prohibition era. Only one of the inmates was imprisoned for murder.

• On May 6, 1940, John Steinbeck is awarded the Pulitzer Prize for his novel "The Grapes of Wrath." The book traces the fictional Joad family of Oklahoma as they lose their family farm and move to California in search of a better life. One of Steinbeck's most effective works of social commentary, the novel also won the National Book Award.

• On May 4, 1959, the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences announces the winners of the first Grammy Awards. Henry Mancini won the Best Album award for "The Music from Peter Gunn"; Perry Como was voted Best Male Vocalist and Ella Fitzgerald Best Female Vocalist.

• On May 2, 1972, Steven Spielberg begins filming "Jaws." The production, which used three mechanical sharks to great effect, grossed $458 million in its theatrical release.

CRITIC'S CORNER

By D.NA Smith

"Grindhouse"

Running time: 185 minutes
MPAA rating: R

For those who came of age in the late '60s and '70s, the heyday of the grindhouse flick, our moviegoing appetites were sated by a constant buffet of Bad Girls ("Faster, Pussycat! Kill! Kill!), blaxploitation flicks ("Scream, Blackula, Scream!), gore fests ("Dawn of the Dead") and other assorted low-budget, over-the-top schlockers filled with bad acting, bare breasts and high body counts.

Directors Quentin Tarantino and Robert Rodriguez have based their careers on paying homage to those films, and with "Grindhouse" they pull out all the stops to re-create the look and feel of what it was like to stumble into a run-down, sticky-floored 42nd Street theater in the 1970s. From missing reels, to scratched film stock, damaged soundtracks and a passel o' groovy mock trailers, the duo have created a totally immersive, high-octane experience.

Rodriguez directs the first film in the double feature, "Planet Terror," a high-velocity, uber-gory zombie flick featuring a feisty go-go dancer (Rose McGowan) with a machine-gun to replace her leg that was eaten by the undead, a lesbian doctor with a mini-pistol that shoots syringes, a pair of psychotic twin babysitters and the added joy of watching The Black-Eyed Peas' Fergie get ripped apart by brain-eating zombies. (Alas, if life could imitate art.)

The second film (directed by Tarantino), "Death Proof," stars Kurt Russell as Stuntman Mike, a serial killer who uses his deathproofed car as a weapon to kill pretty girls. The film pays homage to both the high-octane chase movies like "Gone in 60 Seconds" and "Vanishing Point," and the Bad Girl, "Faster Pussycat!" genre. The high point of "Death Proof" is watching the greatest stuntwoman of our time, Zoe Bell, hanging onto the hood of a speeding car while Russell's character constantly rams into her. You don't see great old-school stuntwork like that anymore.

I know that a movie like "Grindhouse" isn't going to appeal to a lot of people who are used to the usual watered-down PG-13 fare that passes as entertainment these days. But for those of us who grew up on "Shaft in Africa," "Race With the Devil" and "Omega Man," "Grindhouse" is a love letter reminding us why we loved going to the movies in the first place.

joint project of the Yolo County Children's Alliance and First 5 Yolo, we work year-around to provide access to comprehensive health coverage for children. We've enrolled more than 500 children into our local health insurance programs, Healthy Kids and Kaiser Child Health Plan. We also have enrolled nearly twice as many children into the Medi-Cal and Healthy Families insurance programs. Due to this work, our children in Yolo County are healthier and are missing fewer school days. But the job is not done. There are still 763,000 children in California without health insurance, 3,600 kids in Yolo County alone. Without additional funding, our successful local efforts are not sustainable.

Our kids cannot wait. Let's more forward now and provide access to health insurance for all Californians, including coverage for all our children.

Thoughts on violence

Some thoughts on violence prevention: (1) Locally, the apparent attack by some Broderick Boys of AmTrak engineers on Union Pacific tracks near the I Street Bridge makes me think back to the early 1970s when I was keeping books for some California Youth Authority grants, one of which was entitled, "Evaluation of Juvenile Diversion Programs." Too bad we can't divert the attention of the Broderick Boys into something more constructive/less destructive. (2) Reference the Virginia Tech massacre which killed 33. To what degree were violent video games a factor? And the assailant appeared "so different" from other students, having so few, if any, friends. Did he feel he was being "made fun of" and nobody wanted to understand him? If so, we should heed the old slogan, "Never take comfort in another's discomfort" and try to help those "so different" to not only better understand us, but we should also try to better understand such people, thus narrowing the gap of misunderstanding and the potential for violence.

Ending dog-fighting

The Humane Society of the United States wishes to congratulate U.S. Senator Dianne Feinstein and House Speaker Nancy Pelosi for their efforts to stop dog fighting and cockfighting. Thanks to Senator Feinstein, a lead sponsor of the bill, and Speaker Pelosi, who advanced the bill to the House floor, the Animal Fighting Prohibition Enforcement Act passed the U.S. House of Representatives by a landslide vote of 368-39, and passed the U.S. Senate unanimously. It is now on the President's desk.

This anti-crime legislation will provide felony-level penalties for interstate and foreign animal fighting activities, and outlaw commerce in cockfighting weapons. Animal fighting not only fosters unspeakable cruelty to animals, but also spawns other criminal activity, such as narcotics traffic, illegal gambling, public corruption and violence toward people.

When animal fighters can earn tens of thousands of dollars wagering on a single fight, a slap on the wrist is considered just a cost of doing business. Stronger penalties are needed to stop this organized network of criminal activity, and that's why the National Sheriffs' Association and 400 law enforcement agencies from across the country joined The Humane Society of the United States in backing this bill.

Thank you to Senator Feinstein and Speaker Pelosi for working to give animal fighting the knock-out punch.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• Raquel Welch, sex symbol of the 1960s and '70s, auditioned for the part of Mary Ann on "Gilligan's Island," but was passed over in favor of Dawn Wells. Incidentally, Welch's birth name was Jo Raquel Tejada.

• In modern society, hundreds of millions of people across the globe speak English. You don't have to go back very far, though, to find a time when English wasn't nearly so widespread or highly regarded. In the 16th century, the age of Queen Elizabeth I and William Shakespeare, only a few million people spoke the language — and not even all the people of England spoke English.

• The identity of the person who made the following comment is still not known: "A Christian is a man who feels repentance on Sunday for what he did on Saturday."

• In Turkey, a man named Demker Cevik said that he could eat an entire barbecued lamb, a claim that an acquaintance disputed. A small bet was placed, and the contest began. After quite a while, Cevik did, in fact, finish the lamb and win the bet. It was a short-lived victory, however; 10 minutes later, Cevik keeled over, dead.

• If you're like the average American, you'll eat more than 15 pounds of fish this year.

• Did you ever wonder what all the hoopla is about? It doesn't really matter what the hoopla is about, though — it's the word "hoopla" itself that's interesting. The modern English word actually comes from the French words "houp," which means "hey," and "la," which means "there." The combination is, essentially, the interjection "hey there!" — which inspired its current use to describe a commotion of some kind.

CASE NUMBER PB07-082

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Daniel Stephen Hawkins:

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Linda Lee Schrimsher in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Linda Lee Schrimsher be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE petition requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on May 24, 2007, at 9:00 a.m. in Dept. 2, Superior Court of California, 725 Court St., Woodland CA 95695

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a "Request for Special Notice" (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A "Request for Special Notice" form is available from the court clerk.
